8th FFN (Fragility Fracture Network) Global Congress 2019: Oxford, UK 28-30 August 2019

Start making your plans now to attend the FFN Congress 2019. The congress will be held in the historic heart of the University of Oxford, surrounded by a thousand years of academic achievement.

FFN invites you to join the 8th FFN Global Congress 2019 in Oxford, UK from 28–30 August. The annual meeting is an international congress addressing the full pathway of care for fragility fracture patients. The FFN Global Congress consists of invited talks from international experts, plenary discussions, interactive update sessions and free papers. The congress provides a unique multi-disciplinary platform to learn about new technical developments, state-of-the-art interventions, international research and to interact with leading clinicians, researchers and other professional health workers and stake holders.

Online registration will open in spring 2019. For further information, please visit www.ffn-congress.com

The target audience for the congress includes nurses and all other health professionals involved in the fragility fracture patient pathway from osteoporosis and fracture liaison services, fracture clinics, the ED, through to trauma, orthogeriatric and hip fracture units and post-acute care. Special rates for the entire congress will be available for nurses and, on 27 August 2019 (the day prior to the main congress), there is to be a special one-day event for nurses – further details to be announced. Further information about the nursing day will be available via Facebook by joining the following Facebook group: Nursing Fragility Fracture Group (NFFG)
