“The results of testing determine whether the infants have vaccine protection, immunity, or chronic HBV infection.”

The sentence should read:

“The results of testing determine whether the infants have vaccine protection, lack protection and should be revaccinated, or have chronic HBV infection.”

The editorial office has been informed of errors in the Results section of the main text. Three values in the text were not updated after re-analysis and do not match Table 2. The values are correct in Table 2.

The changes are to the following sentence: “Among men, the prevalence of cigarette smoking was 27.0% for those who identified as gay and 25.9% for those who identified as bisexual, compared with 21.3% for those who identified as straight (Table 2).” The values should read as 26.1%, 20.7%, and 20.5% respectively.
